Biography

- Born on New Year's Eve in Szombathely, the birthplace of Saint Martin of Tours, in western Hungary.
- She began dancing at the age of 8, making movement and physical expression a lifelong companion.
- As a competitor for the legendary Savaria Dance Club, she won numerous national and international championships across both youth and adult categories.
- After several years of stage experience as a performer, she turned to acting—shortly after being advised by doctors, while still in high school, to step back from the physically demanding world of competitive standard and Latin dance.
- She studied acting at the Jókai Theatre Acting School in Békéscsaba. Among her most memorable stage roles were:
 - Miranda in The Collector at Madách Theatre, Budapest,
 - Mrs. Curley in Of Mice and Men at the Weöres Sándor Theatre, Szarvas,
 - Mariane in Molière's Tartuffe.
- She holds a high school teaching degree in English language education.
- Studied European political science in Brighton, England—an especially formative time where she encountered the Martha Graham dance technique, a pivotal influence from one of the founders of modern dance.
- Graduated from the Hungarian Dance University in Budapest.
- In recent years, her focus has shifted primarily toward television and film.
